Because of its basic features, Photoshop Elements may not be the ideal tool to create high-quality images and graphics. However, it is still a very popular tool because of its simple user interface and lower price. Although Photoshop has its own dedicated sections in the market, Adobe Photoshop Elements is a competing software. Elements is similar to Photoshop CS6 because of their similar features, interface and usage. Both software programs are used for image editing, and they will suit different users in different ways. Because Elements has a simpler interface than the full version of Photoshop, it may be harder to learn. The hard-to-remember shortcuts and keyboard shortcuts are different. Elements also lacks the professional features found in Photoshop. It allows you to create custom backgrounds and templates instead of brushes, and it is not recommended to use Elements for web design because Elements can't save and open web files. If you are looking for a cheap alternative to Photoshop, the Adobe Photoshop Elements 2018 version 10.0 is one of the better options. It is easy to use and is compatible with most devices. Adobe Photoshop Elements 2018 Features: • Huge file size reduction • A comprehensive selection tool • 8-color, 16-color or 32-bit bitmaps • 32-bit BMP, JPEG, TIFF, PNG and GIF file formats • A quick selection tool • Easily crop or rotate images • User defined selections • A photo editing tool • Perfect for beginners • Record or playback video using the Movie tool • Prints directly from the dialog • Apply the same actions to multiple images • Edit audio • Repetitive tasks such as drawing and sizing images, saving, or closing a dialog • Choose from among several preset backgrounds • Easy-to-use interface • 17-layer file formats • Many adjustment tools • Adjust the depth of shadows • Adjust the brightness of highlights • Adjust the contrast of shades, whites, and midtones • Adjust the shape and size of objects • Adjust the hue and saturation of shades, whites, and midtones • Reduce the size of a photo • Create gradients and spot enhancements using built-in tools • Adjust the red, blue, and green values • Automatically align similar objects • Cut or copy and paste selected 388ed7b0c7

D.A.R.E. D.A.R.E. (Drug Abuse Resistance Education) is a drug prevention program, originally created by the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) National Center for three years in the mid-1990s, as an educational program for public schools in the United States. The D.A.R.E. program is an official National Drug Control Program funded by the U.S. Office of National Drug Control Policy and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The D.A.R.E. organization was founded in 1990 by drug prevention pioneer Richard C. Lee. The D.A.R.E. program has been hosted by every United States president since Gerald Ford, first as a classroom curriculum and then as a statewide drug prevention program. As of the 2010–2011 school year, there are 2,357 DARE Mentors employed by D.A.R.E., operating in more than 3,500 public schools and in more than 500,000 communities. The D.A.R.E. organization is a model of how substance abuse prevention can be combined with high school and middle school education, as well as community involvement. A wide range of free resources is provided to school districts, including fully developed lesson plans, videos, public service announcements, and more. D.A.R.E. programs vary in size and scope according to state and school district policies, although the basic curriculum is the same. In some states, public schools with high concentrations of economically disadvantaged students are eligible to use a grant to develop, implement, and staff a D.A.R.E. program similar to the National D.A.R.E. program, with a similar scope and reach. D.A.R.E. stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education. The organization's mission is to improve the lives of children through prevention of drug abuse and violence by equipping educators and youth with the knowledge, skills, and behaviors to resist drugs, alcohol, and violence. D.A.R.E. claims that its tactics can reduce the overall number of youth substance abuse problems by 30 percent, and that students enrolled in D.A.R.E.-style schools have a 35% lower rate of marijuana use, a 40% lower rate of alcohol use, and a 20% lower rate of cigarette use than students not enrolled.
